The student lounge has six computers for student use that are connected to public internet and have CAC ability. There is also a bookshelf with Special Operations literature available for student use. There are cable televisions in both the student lounge and café.

Databases are available from 0730 to 1500.

JSOU Press

The JSOU Press publishes books, monographs, research reports, occasional papers, and provides publishing support to USSOCOM journals. The publication program helps JSOU, other US warfighters, national leaders, policy makers, academicians, military historians, and other analysts understand Special Operations. JSOU Press makes available a large, varied inventory of publications in print and electronic formats, which are the result of unique research by military authors and civilian scholars. Publications are provided to military personnel and civilian employees of the US government free of charge and to the general public at reasonable prices through the Government Printing Office. Some of the publications are offered in the student lounge for students to read or take home at no cost.

Recycling

At JSOU there are two recycling bins to dispose of plastic and aluminum. One bin is located inside the student café and the other is next to Student Services. We are trying to help our planet as much as possible and appreciate your help in supporting our efforts.

For all other policies and information please refer to the Student Handbook that can be accessed at <https://jsou.socom.mil/Pages/Default.aspx>.
